

NEW FEATURE: Guide to the new queued placement system, ‘future fulfilment’:

Future fulfilment represents a significant upgrade to our placement technology. It allows users to define a price and stake that is currently not available in the market and queue the order until it can be matched. The placement algorithm will continually monitor the market until the price satisfies the placement criteria and then automatically execute bets to fill the requested volume without the need for further manual interaction.

The new betslip shows durations of up to two hours. This is the length of time that the client wishes the ‘future fulfilment’ order to remain open. Once this time elapses the order will close and there will be no further placement attempts.

Once the future fulfilment order has been ‘placed’ into the market using the betslip, our matching algorithm will listen for any price changes, the navigation bar at the top of the page will change to reflect the number of pending orders the client has and the bet bar will create a pending bet. As with all orders it can be cancelled at any time from the trade page by clicking the ‘X’ within the red box in the bet bar:

If the market price satisfies the order price then the system will automatically attempt placement as if a user had clicked ‘place bet’ when the price and volume was available in the market. The bet bar and order page will update to reflect this:

The order page provides an overview of all open bet placement requests. Orders can be cancelled using the ‘X’ button, stake amended by clicking on the box in the ‘Want Stake’ column and reviewed in detail by clicking the +/- button on the leftmost column. Once orders are closed due to expiry, manual cancellation or fulfilment they will disappear from the order page and transfer to the order history page.
